BAK Battery Outdoor Energy Storage

Our lithium iron phosphate batteries precisely meet these demands: In terms of safety, they have excellent high-temperature and low-temperature resistance, can operate stably in extreme weather conditions such as intense heat and severe cold, and have a low risk of thermal runaway, thereby reducing safety hazards in outdoor unmanned scenarios; The cycle life is extremely long, capable of supporting thousands of charge and discharge cycles, significantly reducing the frequency of power replacements for street lamps, and significantly lowering maintenance costs in the long run; At the same time, the battery energy density has been optimized, and when combined with solar panels, it can achieve efficient energy storage, meeting the continuous lighting needs of street lamps throughout the night, especially suitable for remote areas or outdoor scenarios without grid coverage.
